Missing Player O'Brien Found

It's always nice to find a player who is completely unidentified. A man named O'Brien played one game at second base for Washington on August 2, 1887. For a long time, this player was identified as Jeremiah O'Brien. That appeared to be a guess by someone, since Jeremiah O'Brien was playing for Wilkes-Barre at the time. Fortunately, Peter Morris doesn't guess; he knows.

Peter found an article in the Chicago Tribune that O'Brien had been playing with the Whitings of Chicago, an amateur team. In 1890, Peter J. O'Brien signed with Chicago and Peter found a couple of articles stating that he came from the Whitings and had played there for 4 years. After his major league appearance with Anson's boys in 1890, he went back to the city league where he led the league in hitting in 1893. An article from 1900 had O'Brien being named city clerk; the article mentioned he was a former Chicago ballplayer. Peter verified that this was the man who died on a golf course June 30, 1937. So although we already had the 1890 player's death, Peter wins the Find of the Month award for determining that Peter O'Brien was also the 1887 Washington player.

The 2008 Rookies

Attached you will find the 2008 rookie list. There were 238 rookies and 1 non-playing manager. The non-playing manager, Trey Hillman, is listed at the end.

The following players all had relatives who played in the major leagues: Edgar Gonzalez, brother of Adrian Gonzalez, Tug Hulett, son of Tim Hulett, Jayson Nix, brother of Laynce Nix, Joshua Roenicke, son of Gary Roenicke and nephew of Ron Roenicke, and Will Venable, son of Max Venable. If anyone knows of any others, please let me know.

The oldest rookie was Yasuhiko Yabuta, born 06/19/1973 and the youngest was Clayton Kershaw, born 03/19/1988. The tallest were Kameron Mickolio and Jeff Niemann, both 6-09, and the shortest were Callix Crabbe, Daniel Herrera, and Angel Salome, all 5-07. The heaviest was Jeff Niemann at 280 and the lightest was Daniel Herrera at 145.

There weren't a lot of particularly interesting names this year to pick a favorite, but I'm going to go with Callix Crabbe by a nose over Taylor Teagarden.

John Pardon

Again we lost another of our committee members. John Pardon, one of SABR's original 16 members died on October 19. I have known John for 30 years and it was always nice talking to him at the yearly SABR convention. John was a member of virtually every SABR committee and was always willing to help anyone who asked. A few weeks ago he asked if he could track down some of our guys with missing cemeteries who died in his area. He found Frank Bahret buried in Poughkeepsie Rural Cemetery. When he sent it to me, he mentioned that Poughkeepsie Rural Cemetery was the cemetery where he would be buried. I had no idea it would be this soon. So John is buried in the same cemetery as major leaguers Frank Bahret, Bill Daley, and Elmer Steele. John is a more renowned baseball man than any of them.

Wash Williams

Washington F. Williams played 2 games with Richmond in 1884 and 1 game with Chicago in 1885. We list him as dying August 9, 1892 in Philadelphia. Richard Malatzky found in the New York Clipper that William F. Williams died August 9, 1892 in Washington, DC. William F. Williams had pitched for Washington in the 1860s. Apparently, this guy had gotten confused with Washington J. Williams.

Was it really Washington J. Williams who played with Richmond and Chicago? Reed Howard has records for Washington J. Williams playing for various teams from 1883-87. However, at the present time, we don't have any evidence that this is our major leaguer. An article from the Chicago Tribune June 9, 1885 states the following about his game, "a strange face in the Pitchers box for the Chicagos caused much speculation when the game was called. Inquiry developed the fact that his name was Williams and he is the dark horse who Anson has been threatening to spring in the event of Clarkson being disabled. He seems wholly unable to cope with the new pitching rules however good he may be under the old." That doesn't help much. He pitched the first 2 innings, then headed to the outfield. He was replaced at pitcher by Fred Pfeffer. What about Richmond? Do we even know that the player with Richmond was the same guy who played for Chicago? I am removing his death date, but leaving his name for the present time until we can find some proof. However, Williams definitely qualifies as our Mystery of the Month.
